

World Teachers' Day

October 5th is World Teachers' Day. This is a time when teachers around the world are honoured and celebrated for the work and support they provide to pupils.

Can you think of a teacher who has helped and supported you, or made a positive impression? They can be from primary or secondary school:

Why and how did they make a positive impression on you?

How could you show this teacher that you are grateful for their support?

There are lots of inspiring teachers all over the world! You may have heard in the news recently about a statue that has been unveiled in Cardiff for Betty Campbell. Betty made history for being the first black head teacher in Wales.

Scan the QR code below and read the information to complete the fact file about her on the following page.

BBC

Name:

Date of birth:

Place of birth:

Early life experiences:

Name and location of school where she worked as Wales' first black head teacher:

Why is she honoured today? Give an explanation:

